ARGENTINE AGRICULTURE.

London, Jan. 18th.

In the STANDARDS received last week it is mentioned as a hopeful circumstance that Buenos Aires will have this season a surplus of 500,000 tons of grain for exportation. In this morning's paper I read that agriculture has proved so unfortunate in the River Plate that last year the people of Buenos Aires had to import wheat from the Black Sea. This shows the ups and downs of what has unfortunately now become the chief industry of the Argentine Republic. In 1886, Argentine wheat was selling at three shillings a bushel. Thus if you have an abundant crop, the price you get for the surplus will not be remunerative, if your crop be short you must get grain from the Black Sea. Would it not be better to keep over the surplus of one year for the deficit of an ensuing one?

The official returns for 1887 shewed 5,900,000 acres in the Argentine Republic under crops, wheat standing for 2,100,000 acres. The crops are usually very light six or eight bushels to the acre, as compared with 30 bushels in England or 12 in the United States. In fact, it is rare (except in the watered lands of Mendoza or San Juan) to get one ton of grain from a cuadra' or four acres. But that land is cheap it could never pay to grow grain on such terms, and as land rises the prospects of agriculture must become less and less profitable. At present the grain area is about 3,900,000 acres, which may be expected to produce 32 million bushels. Local requirements are not likely to fall short of 20 millions, leaving a surplus of only 12 million bushels or 300,000 tons for exportation. Twelve million bushels represent a value of seven million dollars, or £2,400,000, and as the earnings of the Argentine people in 1884 were about £62,400,000 it follows that the surplus grain crop is equal to a week's earnings. In the meantime you are allowing pastoral industry to fall into the second rank, and if President Juarez Celman's figures be correct the value of cattle and sheep has declined 40 per cent since 1884, shewing a national loss of 20 millions sterling.

If one-fourth of the care and capital devoted to agriculture since 1884 had been given to pastoral industry, your export of frozen mutton in 1889 would have been not thirty thousand tons, but three hundred thousand tons. Grain is worth £5 a ton, mutton £45, and here in Europe we want meat much more than grain. The meat imports of Great Britain last year were—

	Tons.	Value.
Irish Cattle ...	237,000	£9,500,000
Foreign ditto	260,000	10,400,000
Beef	119,000	5,200,000
Mutton	61,000	2,600,000
Pork, etc.	303,000	12,700,000
Poultry	12,000	700,000
Total...	992,000	41,100,000

The home production of Great Britain was 770,000 tons, so that it appears we are fed on British meat only five months in the year, and on Irish or foreign during the other seven months.

It is not too late for Argentines to pay some heed to the advice of one who takes a warm interest in the progress and welfare of the country. When I read of new banks in the upper provinces, new sugar mills, new issues of Cedulas and the like, it fills me with regret that people run after "ignes fatui" in the pursuit of wealth, and leave so many stones unturned for raising the Republic to great prosperity.

LONDON LETTER.

THE WEEK'S GOSSIP.

(From our own Correspondent)

January, 24th

The pageant of the week has been the public funeral of Lord Napier of Magdala. As a military spectacle it was very grand. The service at St. Paul's was also splendid. The only drawback was that the police were insufficient to keep the crowd well in hand, and it must be said the decision of the Government to make the funeral public was sudden and a little late. The wonder is that the ceremony was as successful as it was. Lord Napier's body was carried from his residence in the Tower, of which he was Constable, to the Cathedral; so that the West rather held aloof; and beyond the military and their friends and the Prince of Wales and his suite, the commander-in-chief and the foreign military representatives, amongst whom was a noble looking German officer, there was not a very great crowd in St. Paul's, but there was rather a rough one outside. If you want a purely telegraphese description, the grammar and style of which is pitilessly analysed in the Star, you must read the Daily Telegraph itself. The following extract is from the Pall Mall Gazette, and is supposed to be a view of the proceedings in the Cathedral as seen from the pulpit:—

"At half past eleven the cathedral was not half full, and those who were bidden filed in slowly for some time. The City Fathers in their furred robes marched up the south transept and took their places in the choir. The scarlet uniforms of the officers who were scattered about the vast space gave a pleasant glow to the cheerless aisles, and relieved the dead black which was of course worn by most of the civilians who were present. As usual in the case of most of the modern ceremonies we are pleased to call "pageants," the Beefeaters were the most picturesque figures. A number of them kept the line in the middle of the nave, being joined presently by the Engineers. The miscellaneous gathering of sight-seers who lined the western end of the nave were kept back by barriers. Whilst we were waiting for the arrival of the body there were many interesting little episodes which attracted attention: the first was the arrival of a prince in a striking military uniform of white, slashed with black, wearing a pair of shiny black military boots and spurs. This gentleman was thought by many to bear a striking resemblance to the Prince of Wales, owing, perhaps, to the cut of his beard, and for a long time many people gazed upon his striking figure thinking that they were looking upon their future King. He made no small sensation when he walked up the nave followed by a servant carrying a beautiful wreath of creamy flowers with a violet cross. Then the grave was another centre of attraction, or rather the grave-like opening through which the coffin was afterwards lowered into the crypt. When you peered into it, unless you knew of the existence of the movable platform, it was quite impossible to detect the counterfeit. In the midst of these observations the choir in their robes filed in, and the organist presently began to play Chopin's pathetic funeral march, surely the most beautiful of all the music which is associated with Death. And now the scene became more animated—for there is animation of the graveside—for the allotted seats were all occupied, and the cathedral was filled with sounds that were strange to it. The clanking of spurs, the clashing of scabbards accompanied the wailing tones of the organ. If you looked around there was a mass of uniforms, brilliant with gold and silver, and there was a sombre picturesqueness in the dead black of the mourners who sat facing the brilliant crowd of princes and officers who filled the space on the other side of the grave. The vergers and officers of the cathedral, clad in strange uniform, and carrying sticks of office, were now hurrying to and fro in an official manner. The cathedral clergy, too, had arrived, headed by Canon Gregory and Canon Liddon, and marched down to the great west door, which was now thrown open, and without we could hear the strains of Chopin's Funersl March stealing into the cathedral, rising and falling in volume, accompanied by the beating of muffled drums and the tramp of soldiers. Louder and louder sounded the tramp, and Chopin's march died away, the great organ struck up, and the measured footsteps of the soldiers in the procession echoed through the cathedral. The doors closed, the procession filed slowly up the nave, and in a minute the coffin was placed on the two trestles clothed in black at the foot of the grave. the choir filed on either side of the grave singing a mournful chorus as they proceeded to their places, and we saw for the first time the British ensign, the peer's coronet, the red velvet cushion the Field Marshal's baton, the sword, and the plumed head dress of the brave old soldier who has fought his last battle and joined his comrades across the Styx. The Prince of Wales, in his Field Marshal's uniform, sat next to the Duke of Cambridge, and Prince George, Lord Wolseley, Lord George Hamilton, and Mr. Stanhope were in the front row of mourners. The service now proceeded, being conducted by Canon Gregory and Canon Sheppard, and the body was lowered into the crypt below.,"

Whilst the creditors of the "Jubilee Plunger", Mr. Ernest, Benzon were absolutely talking over his affairs before the Commissioners in Bankruptcy in London, the following curious proceedings were going on at Nice. A correspondent of the Times says:

"Mr. Ernest Benzon, the 'Jubilee Plunger,' was arrested at the Cercle de la Méditerranée, in Nice, last night, soon after returning from the races, on charge of having forged the name of an English gentleman now in Nice upon a cheque on a London bank for 25,000f. (£1,000). This, it is alleged, he presented to the Credit Lyonnais here, which paid it on the 17th inst. It was dishonored by telegraph yesterday Benzon is still in custody pending the investigation of the charge."

Another correspondent telegraphs from Mentone, Jan. 22:—"Mr. Benzon went to the Credit Lyonnais, in Nice, last Friday with a cheque for £1,000, purporting to be signed by Captain Hargreaves. The cheque was cashed and sent to London in due course; but the manager of the Credit Lyonnais received a telegram yesterday saying that the cheque was a forgery. Benzon in the meanwhile had told his friends that he had been winning largely at play, having up till then been very short of money. He attended the races each day, and yesterday evening went to the Cercle de la Mediterranee and played baccarat as usual. The police came and arrested him there, and he is at present in prison. If the charge be true, it is singular that knowing, as he must have done, the inevitable consequences of his act, he should have made no attempt to leave the country before the cheque came back."

One of the evening papers gives a capital portrait of Mr. Benzon: His face consists principally of nose. That feature is usually credited with denoting character. Benzon must have a lot. The organ is however, somewhat Semitic, not of the hooked type but rather of the ovine. The upper lip is short but by no means aristocratic and is delicately smeared by a half-grown moustache. The chin is feeble, and the head is apparently within an inch of that craniological measurement that fixes the border-land of human rationality. There are only too many hundreds of young men in fashionable and sporting London society who are of the same type.

I find there is an immense arrear of law cases to be reported. The Parnell v. Times case is fixed for February 3d. The O'Shea case has had a preliminary canter in the shape of an action for contempt of court brought by Captain O'Shea against Freeman's Journal, the Star and New York Herald, all of which journals made remarks more or less uncomplimentary to Capt. O'Shea, who appeared in court faultlessly attired with a gold headed malacca cane, a new silk hat, new gloves and smart blue silk birdseye tie. Mr. Justice Butt after hearing evidence as to the Star and N-Y Herald, deferred giving judgment until the Freeman's Journal motion was heard, as that paper's observations on a case "sub judice" were the hottest.

In the city blackmailing case Bebro and others v Marks, Marix and others the jury disagreed and were discharged. The cross examination of Mr. Bebro was very warm and perhaps the disagreement of the jury faithfully represented the sixness of the one lot and the halfdozenness of the other.

The more celebrated brother of Marks, Mr. Harry Marks of the Financial News has had his turn, and for the first time during the seven years existence—a dangerous and crusading existence—of that paper it was fined for libel The action was brought by one Fagge by name, whom the judge—even judge Huddleston—and the jury pronounced to be a swindler and promoter of a bogus gold mining concern On that count Mr. Harry Marks, who had valiantly exposed the swindle, was acquitted, but he had unfortunately made statements in regard to Fagge's business connection with an erratic and assumed clerical gentleman known as Archdeacon Dunbar and also as to Fagge's conduct as an outside broker. As these personal delinquencies were not proved, Mr. Harry Marks had to pay £50 on the first count and £5 on the second, a small and even paltry total which Mr. Marks in the Financial News tells us—the public—that he pays gladly for our sakes and for our protection. One loves Mr. Harry Marks.

The case Sexton v the Scotsman has been partially heard and the judge has ordered it to be "placed on the rolls", a stage in the procedure of Scotch law that no doubt means something or other.

The case of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice brought against a young solicitor, Mr. Arthur Newton, has been heard by the Magistrate, who committed him and de Galla for trial but bailed them for £100 each. The recognizances for both were at once given by Mr. Newton's father, and it looks as if the case were not very serious. No fresh or piquant evidence was elicted in regard to the Cleveland Street business, which seems to me to be gradually falling on the heads of the police. Whether Inspector Aberline and others are guilty of indiscretion or are made the scapegoats of the Home Office may perhaps appear in the trial. There is a little movement in favour of getting Mr. Ernest Parke's sentence reduced. It is thought Hawkins snobbishly laid it on too hard in view of the much less severe sentences which judges pronounce for absolute crimes. I see that Truth goes into the Euston case heavily, but I think nearly all Mr. Labouchere has to say too much resembles what has already been said in this column to need quotation. Now let us wind up with a bit about influenza, a subject that might yet interest you nearly, for it is already very bad in Central America. In Europe and in these islands, although the epidemic has abated, the cases of relapse and pulmonary disorder are very frequent. You will no doubt have seen by telegram that two doctors in Vienna claim to have discovered the influenza bacillus which, much resembles the tuberculosis microbe, except that its mane is black and the head more prettily curved. The Gresham lecturer, Dr. Symes Thompson, quite believes in germs if not in microbes, and confirms the theory that the disease perhaps arose in the muddy deposits caused by the overflow of the Yellow River in China, and impregnated with the remains of human corpses, and that it first attacked horses and other animals which communicated it to human beings. He thinks Irishmen and Frenchmen, being of a more "up and down temperament", are more easily affected than other people. The professor probably alludes to people of nervous temperament. If so, his theory is more scientifically described in Berlin, where Dr. Leyden says it is possible to distinguish three sorts of influenza—the gastric with digestive derangements, the catarrhal which makes itself perceptible by inflammation of the respiratory organs; and the nervous in which the patient suffers pains in the head and limbs and a general feeling of weakness.

PARIS LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Feb. 4th.

The relations between France and Russia are very curious to study. Sagacity would suggest to France to depend only on herself—"nought shall make her rue, if she but to herself prove true". However, there is a strong current, not composed of the sober heads of the country, that will indulge in gush for Russia. Every incident recalling the Moscovite is the occasion for a Russian manifestation. It is to be remarked, the continued extreme sobriety with which Russia receives this demonstrative political affection. She does not go exactly out of her way to court it nor does she reprove the declarations of love, as each grand duke comes and goes, nor the manifestations of esteem when Glinka's opera is represented whether at Nice or at Paris,—"La Vie pour le Tsar."

The fact is not clearly demonstrated to the cool and thinking minds of France in what manner Russia could exactly strike in to help the French. Were a conflict to arise, where Germany alone would have to face Russia and France, with all the powers looking on disinterestedly, the question would be less foggy. But no one in the possession of his senses believes that the next war will be limited to these three powers, with the others simply looking on and keeping the ring. And when the dread moment arises, when every belligerent must select a side, the decision will be most naturally guided by self-interest. The nation possessing the greatest staying power and the longest purse will not fail to attract allies, as flies flock to honey. England may be expected not to stand by and see Russia advance further westward unchecked. Indeed there are many Frenchmen who do not disguise their opinion, that the triumphant Cossacks at Berlin would be a disaster for France.

It is from this standpoint that Colonel Stoffel has written his proposal of an alliance between France and Germany. But he makes it a primary condition of success that the Teuton should commence by handing back Alsace-Lorraine to France. No German will consent to make that sacrifice unless compelled to do so by Lebel rifles and smokeless powder. The reason simply is that the ancient Palatinate, as in the time of Turenne, is a rampart against the invasion of France by Southern Germany. And Germany will not consent either to weaken her military defence, which is one of the principal elements of her unity, nor will she consent to occupy a secondary position to France in the Councils of Europe. Only the sword, unhappily, can undo what the sword has achieved. Blood and iron, not sentiment and philanthropy, are the conclusive reasons with Bismarckian diplomacy. The Stoffel remedy for the peace of Europe is not even as good as a plaster for a wooden leg. To keep Russia back, nothing is more excellent than placing Austria in the first line of resistance. It is not Russia that upholds the peace of Europe, but her comprehension of the coalition that would at once hem round her did she attempt to apply the torch to the Balkan combustible, which, after all the care and foresight of statesmen, may yet blaze up by spontaneous combustion.

France was getting on well under the conduct of the Tirard Ministry. Foreign Secretary Spuller had proved so industrious, that he became well-posted on all the questions affecting his department. His future was most promising: he stroked Italy down the back; he was able to calm the fever of the Minister of the Marine, respecting the cod and lobster loggerheadism at Newfoundland, and he is finding a fairly passable exit out of his hasty "non possumus" attitude on the Egyptian question by which England will be allowed to unify the National Debt of Egypt, and thus have a freer hand to buy up Nile stock and scrip held so extensively by French bankers whose only fear is, that the British troops may go away, when financial chaos would come again. This is the opinion of the financial world that long since took in the situation—England will not evacuate Egypt till it pleases her, and no power is prepared or feels inclined to give her marching orders Should Mr. Spuller be succeeded in any new ministry by either M. Flourens or M. Charmes who are longing to handle the Newfoundland and Egyptian difficulties in another, a quasi-summary manner, it is impossible to predict into what plight they may plunge France. This is why so many grave and sound lookers-on view at the present moment a change of ministers as next to a deplorable event. They feel that England has been soured by the out-burst of an mosity against her for pulling up Portugal so peremptorily, thus cutting short the latter's ability to do harm; that state of temper of John Bull will make him less manageable. Beyond doubt the nation neither desires ministerial squabbles, irritating politics at home, or foreign complications.

The Chamber has plenty of practical and recuperative work to occupy its time. The financial situation alone would require an entire session to make clear and straight. The demand for the right of association is becoming louder and stronger: it is always promised but never conceded; it is a reform like man, who "never is, but always to be blest." Then comes the revision of the Custom's tariffs, that the celebrated committee of fifty-five deputies has been practically entrusted to deal with. That their handiwork will be highly protectionist is accepted as a foregone conclusion; but the reconciliation of divergent protectionist interests alone will be equivalent to all the labors of Hercules. The commission will well merit the gratitude of their country, if they succeed in their task. Even the few free traders that have been elected on the committee are not out-and-out free traders, and of whom, M. Leon Say is the leading type. They do not object to reciprocity treaties, framed between two countries on the give and take principle, but they want raw materials to be admitted at exceedingly low duties. The general idea of the protectionists is, to make the foreign goods imported into France defray, by high duties, the heavy taxation of the country. They seem to ignore the truth, that France is not a self-contained country, capable of consuming what she produces and manufactures. She has want of foreign markets, not only in which to buy but in which to sell, and this necessity renders her impotent to dictate a Customs' Tariff, founded on the mere good pleasure basis.

The Portuguese conflict, not having expanded to the dimensions of a European question, has collapsed. Portugal received kilometres of newspaper sympathy all round, but that did not prevent the Pinto raid having to be abandoned. The attempt to exclude English trade and commerce from Portugal has also fallen through. The single Lisbon firm that put in an advertisement in a few journals here, inviting French merchants to confide to it their business, does not appear to have "struck ile" by striking while the iron was hot. The best thing for Portugal to do is to entrival England, in according commercial facilities about the Zambesi to all nations.

What do the Argentines intend doing with their pretty palace on the Champs de Mars? It remains standing in all its gloomy isolation, as the surrounding structures are rapidly being demolished. The winter has faded the bright colours of the exterior, and we cannot but feel pity for its melancholy desolation. If the demolition had been actively taken in hand after the closing of the Big Fair, the "material" would now be ready for export. ation. Surely, the delegates of your republic are not waiting to be told by the eviction authorities—"Take yourself off"! The grounds are the picture of desolation, and recall a city after being bombarded. Huge logs of timber lie here, and walls of lath and plaster sprawl there. The quicker the dead are interred, or removed, the better for sight and sunny memory.

It is rumoured that the Commission sent out to the Isthmus of Panama, by the Liquidator of the Canal Company, is not enthusiastically impressed as to the possibility of bringing the scheme to a close. Some of the engineers would change, even at the present hour, much of the original plan. An American authority asserts that the Nicaraguan company has not the slightest idea of having anything to do with the Panama big ditch. The financial world here gives no attention to the speculation whatsoever. All that is to be got out of the wreckage is the railway line across the Isthmus.

Political duels are becoming unhappily more frequent. A very prominent one has taken place between the Marquis de Mores, son of the Duc de Vallombrosa, an ex-Tonkin officer, and Deputy Dreyfus. The former belongs to the Faubourg St. Germains, which is very catholic, but independent of this, the Faubourg has always kept a milk tooth for the jaws since the bursting of the Union Bank, five years ago, of which the famous Boutoux was the director, and where so many worthy old aristocrats placed their money. The Marquis denounced the jews to all the circles of Dante's Inferno: Dreyfus took up the glove. The duel, with pistols, on the Belgian frontier, resulted in Dreyfus getting a smashed arm. The history of the collapse of the Union Bank has yet to be written; opinion considers it was not a jewish "coup" but a political attack on the monarchists, who in any case were terribly hit.

Eyraud, the murderer of the bailiff Gouffe, is expected to be caught. Then will be known, was he hired by the band of usurers Gouffe commanded, to slay the "chef", and to settle their liabilities to him.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

The latest phase which the silver question has assumed in the United States is of very great interest to this country, for on the successful solution of the problem of maintaining silver in circulation, either in hard dollars or by certificates representing them, rests our entire financial fabric. Of course the interest of the United States in endeavoring to keep up the price of silver is a purely selfish one, for that country produces 47 per cent of the world's annual out-put of the white metal. Here in Mexico we need not concern ourselves with the motives which actuate the American people in their efforts to retain silver as part of their monetary system. To use a common expression, in the matter of silver the United States and Mexico are in the same boat: neither can afford to allow silver to sink to the rank of a mere commodity. For these reasons the Mexican people will regard with great interest the financial scheme recommended by Secretary Wisdom in his recent report. And we may say, by way of premise, that it has encountered the hostility of both the extreme gold advocates and of the "cheap dollar" fanatics. Mr. Windom proposes to stop coining silver dollars altogether, and, in lieu thereof, that the United States Treasury shall issue notes against deposits of silver bullion at the market price of silver when deposited, these notes to be payable on demand in such quantities as will equal in value, at the date of presentation, the number of dollars expressed on the face of the notes at the market price of silver, or in gold at the option of the Government; or in silver dollars at the option of the holder of the notes.

Mr. Windom urges that his scheme would make a convenient use of all the money metal in the country; that it would provide a paper currency not subject to undue or arbitrary inflation or contraction or to fluctuating values, but based dollar for dollar on bullion at its market price. Having behind it the pledge of the Government to maintain it at par, this currency would be as good as gold, and would remain in circulation. By thus utilizing the silver of the country a market would be provided for the surplus product, and this he believes would ultimately result in such an enhancement in value that the mints could be opened to the free coinage of silver. The proposed currency, he further urges, would permit a much larger use of silver in the currency, without danger, such as lurks in an increased coinage of silver dollars, of a hoarding or exportation of gold. Should the plan prove a success, urges the Secretary, other nations might find it their interest to adopt it without waiting for an international agreement. The Secretary then goes on to consider possible objections and criticisms, such as that of loss to the Government by a further depreciation in the value of silver bullion which, he says, is very remote, while there is a reasonable probability of profit through the destruction and permanent loss of notes, the bullion represented by them becoming the property of the Government. Then too, it is the duty of the Government to provide a circulating medium even at a loss. To prevent combinations of speculators to force up the price of silver bullion, and thus compel the Government to give them a larger amount for their notes than had been deposited, Mr. Windom suggests that the Secretary of the Treasury be granted discretion temporarily to suspend the receipt of silver, and, under proper restrictions, to sell silver bullion, retaining the gold proceeds for the redemption of silver notes. He believes this would effectually protect the Government even against the most powerful combinations that could be formed. It might be urged against this plan, he says, that it would open a tempting field for speculation by offering to speculators an opportunity, when silver had temporarily fallen but was likely to advance, to withdraw from the Treasury and hold for a rise the silver bullion covered by notes; or when there might be a possibility of a depression, to deposit it, wait for a fall in price, and then have their notes redeemed in an increased quantity of silver. The answer to this objection is that the danger is by no means great, but should it prove so, the judicious exercise by the Secretary of the Treasury of his option to redeem in gold (either coin, bullion or certificates), would effectually prevent the successful culmination of such speculative operations.

Mr. Windom urges that no limit be placed on the right of the Government to receive deposits of silver and issue certificates against it. He also intimates that silver from this country might be included in this plan, which our miners would find entirely agreeable. Probably no more original or ingenious plan for the utilisation of silver bullion as money was ever proposed, and it certainly merits the careful study of the American Congress.

Railway Items.

The Andine Railway is now completely in the hands of the State, and the following gentlemen attached to the N. R. Board have been appointed to look after the line Mr. J. Cortinez, general-manager; Mr. Fay accountant, Mr. Rodriguez Secretary; Mr. L. Delgado, station-master Villa Maria; Mr J. Peter, station-master, Villa Mercedes; Mr. N. Barnechea, store and deposit-manager. Last night we received from official sources full particulars of the arrival of Dr. Araoz and the delivery of the line. On the 21st, Mr. Sanchez, manager pro tem, refused to give up the line on the ground that he had received no instructions from Messrs Sanford and Clark. On the following day Mr. Sanchez urged that he could not deliver the line until Mr. Romby, the manager, arrived. Dr. Araoz, however, faithful to his instructions, insisted on the delivery being immediately made, and in view of Mr. Sanchez' refusal called in witnesses, drew up an "acta", and formally took possession of the railway. The genial chairman of the National Railway Board altered nothing in the arrangements of the line. He contented himself with making out the inventory, and the statement was signed by him and several employees of the railway, since Mr. Sanchez refused to append his signature. No books of the concern could be found. They had no doubt been concealed.

On the 24th. Mr. Romby, the manager arrived.

Dr. Araoz has found the line in a bad condition. He has been obliged to make a station at the Casilla, Las Perdices, and has sent for 600 metres of rail. Trains are not allowed to travel more than 10 kils per hour,

Dr. Araoz is expected here to-morrow.

Since writing the foregoing, a telegram dated Thursday has reached us stating that the train of that day got into Rio Cuarto 8 hours behind time owing to some bungling in Mendoza.

The N. R. Board are at present studying the following guarantee accounts: Central Northern Railway 400,000 dollars gold; Pacific Railway £80,000. This last mentioned railway has the right to sink surplus earnings in improving and repairing the line.

There is now a new project on the tapis for the construction of a grand city terminus, which is certainly badly wanted. The former project was allowed to lapse through official motives of economy. Mr. Jose de Viso now proposes to erect in three years a monumental terminus one kilometre in length (north to south) and 105 metres wide, with four platforms each 200 metres in length. We presume that Mr. del Viso would do the work at the government price; one million sterling.

We received the following yesterday:

The Editor of THE STANDARD:—

Dear Sir:—

Your frequent allusions to the wretched tramway service in this city have suggested to me a possible remedy.

There are nearly two hundred electric tramways in operation in the United States, besides several in England and on the continent, all working to the satisfaction of the owners and the public; nevertheless, the companies here will not make an effort to better their service by putting in an equipment.

The Government should compel all the lines to equip themselves electrically, or re-sell them to a syndicate that will equip them thus.

Pro Bono Publico.

Telegrams from Santa Fé state that the French railway company have five hundred kilometres in course of construction.

A telegram was received yesterday stating that the Argentine Great Western Company have lost their suit against the Rioja Government, for what is not mentioned.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The earthquake on 'Change yesterday caused a Last Day feeling in that establishment and a now-for-it! sensation outside it. The lame ducks and gutter snipes in the street turned pale as gold bounded up and stocks fell like Emin Pasha out of the window after dinner, not knowing where they were going to. Even the very "stags" looked twenty years older when the day's business was over. The only people that kept up their spirits under the trying circumstances were the estancieros who have not yet sold their wool.

There was a desperate ruction in that noisy place of amusement, the Variedades Theatre, on Friday night, caused by half the audience hissing some allusion to Spanish wines in the play. Nobody was hurt. The Spanish wines now sold in this city (we will not say imported) are such infamous stuff that they deserve a good hissing.

Vice-President Pellegrini is now amongst those in the grip of Influenza. We trust His Excellency will speedily shake it off. The public are getting rather tired of this unwelcome guest, and would gladly welcome an epidemic of gout or other fashionable disease by way of a change. "Tonjours influenza ne vaut rien."

The Minister of the Interior is said to have received telegrams to the effect that the Parisian murderer Eyraud, who butchered the Jew usurer Gouffe, is either in this city already, or on his way to it across the ocean.

In answer to the question "Has gold ever changed hands at a premium of 250 on any one day between the months of August and December 1889," we beg to say No.

What a queer business accident insurance is anyhow! Here are companies shreading out all over the civilized world making money out of broken arms, cracked skulls, sprained joints, scalded bodies, spider-bitten and snake-bitten legs and every other imaginable casualty that can happen to the misfortune of men. Sir Somebody falls out of his carriage, or Dennis gets under his cart wheels, Mr. Conductor is crushed in a railway collision, or Mr. Painter falls from his ladder. Up in a balloon, down in a diver, abroad by land and by sea men are killing or maiming themselves, and all these things make business for the Accident Companies, and business means profit—if it be profitably managed—and another confirmation is added to the old proverb that it is an ill wind that blows nobody good.

The "rising sun" business in Montevideo has already assumed the shape of a subscription of a hundred dollars each from twenty "friends" of the President elect, to present him with his official sash, with the National arms in gold and diamonds. Now, if Dr. Herrera does right, he will start his Presidential career by refusing this gift, and all others of whatever kind that may be offered him. In the United States, France and Switzerland such presents are never heard of.

We must caution the public against a dodge of the newsboys in the street Yesterday, a casual reader, choking with very just indignation, entered our office to kindly warn us: he had bought two STANDARDS, supposed to be those of yesterday and Thursday. Having read every line of the first, he proceeded to peruse the latter, and found that the date had been cleverly altered with ink, and he had been "stuck" with two of Thursday's papers. Those who buy their STANDARDS in the street should, therefore, be careful. If we can manage to catch the young culprit, he shall not have a chance to repeat the trick.

Mr. James Mohr Bell and family leave this morning for a month's sojourn at Paysandu.

The Post-Office authorities request us to announce that the 6 cent foreign post-cards answer paid, and also those for the city in like condition, which have been suppressed since the 1st of January, can be exchanged for new cards in the "Franqueo" department of the General Post-Office in Calle Moreno.

One of the Polar bears in the Zoo at Palermo seems quite disgusted with the climate of his adopted country, and passes his days in as "done up" a condition as any biped bear after three days' Carnival. No wonder. It is downright cruelty to leave the poor animal exposed to the summer sun, without even an attempt to shield him from it by means of an awning or other wise; and the end will inevitably be his premature demise and loss of the money he cost. The "Zoo" is wonderfully improved of late, the collection of birds being superior to that of many European Gardens.

The resources of Mr. Bocayuva's friends in the way of keeping up his spirits are not exhausted yet. Our highly distinguished B. v. has kindly consented to postpone his departure in order to attend a gorgeous Venetian-gondola fete to be given in his honour to-morrow night at the Tigre. We hope it won't rain.

Those unfortunate cranes on the Riachuelo bank, which cost millions and have been left for years to rust there without ever having raised a ton of goods, are again the subject of lachrymose letters from the Riachuelo Commissioners to the Minister of the Interior. What the R Cs want H. E. to do in the matter is not so clear—perhaps they would like him to eat the cranes and thus get them finally out of the way.

Our esteemed colleague Le Courrier published yesterday a special telegram from Lisbon to the effect that the business of the English there has gone to the dogs, that the insurance companies have lost all their insurances, and other highly wish-father-to-the-thought news. A row between the English residents and the students is also reported, at Madeira. The former threw cold water on the latter who bravely answered with stones. What the upshot was is not stated.

The Czar of Russia has forty four uniforms, home and foreign, in his wardrobe; of these there is one he has never put on his back, that of Russian Field Marshal, which he refuses to don till he has fairly won on the field of battle the right to do so. Bravo! Czar.

Talking of Russia, we would not advise any of our friends to invest in telephones there, as the following paragraph shows that they are considered "dangerous to the State." Here they are perfectly harmless for the State, though doctors say that continuous use of them brings on ear disease. This is the paragraph: "That civilisation is making rapid strides in Russia is claimed to be the case in that country. Dwellers in the less enlightened West, however, must form rather adverse opinions on that point when they read that the Russian officials have decided that the telephone is "dangerous to the State," and that in Warsaw orders have been given that telephones be removed from all restaurants, coffee houses and liquor saloons. Similar orders have also been issued in all other Polish towns. Indeed there must be "something rotten in the State of Denmark" when even the adjuncts of a high level of civilisation are regarded as 'dangerous to the State.'"

Oh! gracious. Here is a thing that would have been better left unsaid, if it could not have been said in another way. The Razon of Montevideo cruelly announces that, at the banquet to be given to Dr. Herrera in the Solis Theatre on March 3d, "the waiters, who will be in evening dress, will be distinguished from the guests by wearing a plated disk with the name of the hotel that will serve the menu printed on it." !!!

An invasion of Indians now is, happily, a rare occurrence; nevertheless there was an unpleasantly brisk one the other day at the Ocampo Colony in the Chaco. Nobody was sent to another and a better world, but lots of cows were raided from several estancias

A special wire to the Nacion announces that the Municipal loan has fallen through, the bankers refusing to give the million and a half stipulated for by the Lord Mayor. This is only a confirmation of previous advices.

According to La Plata advices, the Mortgage Bank Board is contemplating bringing a number of properties to the hammer, the owners being behindhand in the payment of their quarterly amortizations. The batch is, we believe, a fairly large one.

Dr. Pando, president of the bank, takes his seat in the Senate, and will be succeeded by Mr. Luis Garcia, now 2nd vice-president.

The Board of Agriculture is about to take vigorous measures with a number of "centro agricola" concessionaires who have not complied with the terms of their agreements. A further term will probably be granted them to make up for the deficiency, or in default the concession will be forfeited. It remains to be seen yet how far the guarantees exacted for every concession can be made effective.

The Indemnizadora Accident Insurance Company, as will be seen by an announcement in another column, takes a fresh step in advance and adds to the value of its policies by the statement that the full principal sum will be paid in case of loss of both feet, both hands, a hand and a foot, or the entire sight of both eyes by accident, and that one-half of the principal sum will be paid for the loss of a single hand, foot or eye. It also insures against partial and total disablement and issues long term policies for 3, 5 or 10 years at reduced rates. The Indemnizadora may be depended upon to furnish to its policy holders all that experience and fair dealing require should be given in exchange for the premium paid.

SE ARRIENDA 4 leguas de campo excelente, para ganaderia en Cañada de Gomez, provincia de Santa Fe, sobre la linea ferrea del Rosario a Cordoba. Pendrata Florida 390, Buenos Ayres, de 10 á 11 asm. 711 28 m14

A. Bullrich y Cia.

De el Centro Agricola, General Sarmiento, en el partido de Junin, propiedad del Señor Julio Carrié, situado á 20 kilómetros de las estaciones de los ferro-carriles del Oeste y del Pacifico, y lindando con el ejido del pueblo y á 90 kilómetros del puerto San Nicolás. El ferro-carril concedido al general Teodoro Garcia cruzará este centro.

Estas tierras son especialisimas para la agricultura y conocida es la fama de que gozan los trigos de Junin y la especial demanda que tiene entre los molineros.

Llamamos la atencion de los agricultores sobre este centro, no solo por la calidad de la tierra sino por las ventajosisimas condiciones que se ofrecen para su adquisicion.

El Domingo, 2 de Marzo,
A las 12 del dia,

y sobre el mismo centro, despues de un almuerzo campestre, procederémos al remate del centro general Sarmiento bajo las bases y condiciones siguientes:—

73 chacras de 50 hectáreas mas ó menos cada una con la base de 60 ps. hectárea y con hipoteca de 80 ps. en cédulas de la série O, 16 quintas con base de 80 ps. hectárea y con hipoteca de 80 ps. en cédulas série O.

Los solares no tienen hipoteca y se venderán con la base de 10 centavos el metro cuadrado.

Las condiciones de pago son las siguientes, Haciéndose cargo los compradores de la hipoteca tomando las cédulas al precio de Bolsa el dia antes de la escrituracion, el excedente sobre el importe efectivo de las cédulas y el precio de compra lo abonarán mitad al contado y el resto á 6 meses de plazo.

Hasta hoy no se ha ofrecido un centro agricola en mejores condiciones para el pago. Pueden comprarse tierras con pequeños desembolsos, pues no se exige la diferencia del precio nominal de las cédulas, lo que importa la rebaja de un 40 o|o mas ó menos.

Creemos por consiguiente inútiles mayores recomendaciones y solo rogamos á los chacareros y agricultores se preocupen de este remate y visiten la tierra que ofrecemos en venta, pues creemos esta la mejor oportunidad de adquirirla en buenas condiciones.

Actualmente salen dos trenes para Junin, uno á las 7.30 a.m, que llega á las 3 p.m., y otro á la tarde que sale á las 4.30 p.m. y llega á las 11.20 p.m.

Los interesados deben tomar al tren de la tarde el dia antes de remate, pasando la noche en Junin y al dia siguiente, á las 9 de la mañana, tomar los carruajes que saldran del hotel del señor Valenti para llevar la concurrencia hasta el mismo centro.

Todo comprador sin excepcion abonará el 5 o|o sobre el importe total de su compra al firmar el boleto. Por planos y mas datos á nuestra casa Alsina 482.
